During the residency I worked on the book titled Scattered Communities, translating it from Ukrainian into English. It is a collection of texts by Ukrainian artists on how they live through the war experiences either in Ukraine or abroad and what feelings they have towards the Ukrainian artistic community nowadays. The book is diverse, and thus interesting. It contains both prose and poetry pieces. I believe that we have to spread more texts about what is going on with Ukrainians since 2022 and English translations make it available for the wide audiences around the world.

Synopsis

Scattered communities is a program by the Asortymentna Kimnata gallery for Ukrainian artists who remained in Ukraine and who had to flee because of the war. As of December 2025, two rounds of the program were implemented. They included conversations in closed and public formats, artistic works in tandems and bigger situational collectives, as well as trips to each other, where possible. Scattered Communities: texts is a book of eleven texts that partially put into words what was talked about or kept silent.

Texts: Valeriia Zubatenko, Nikita Kadan, Nikolay Karabinovich, Pavlo Kovach, Harri Kraievets, Katya Lesiv, Oleksii Podat, Volodymyr Prylutskyi, Yaroslav Futymsky, Dasha Chechushkova, unknown author.
